Not illustrated. 1820 Excerpt: . . . weary of German etiquette, German kings, and German state-craft, and in possession of a Monarch who had so emphatically expressed his pride in being a Briton Born, naturally interfered with their judgment, and prepared them to applaud any thing and every thing that came from their young Monarch; a feeling which was amiable and pardonable;--but what censure can be too severe for a House of Commons, which, knowing nothing of the character of the new King, but from hear-say, and that from the most suspicious of sources, passed the law required, almost by acclamation! Those courteous representatives gave no time to the cool and thinking part of the community to canvass the principles, or expose that secret and dangerous support, which a corrupt administration might, in future times, derive from the impunity it might throw over time-serving Judges. In all cases of delegated power, whether regal...
